Summary of purpose and/or change:

LB 874 substitutes “rubber-tired crane” with “self-propelled specialized mobile equipment” in the motor vehicle width, length and weight restriction statutes.

The definition for “self-propelled specialized mobile equipment” that the Department of Roads provides in its rules and regulations is equipment, including self-propelled oil well servicing units, designed to be on a short chassis to accommodate off-road usage and which cannot be broken down or is not divisible because of its original equipment design.

Explanation of amendments, if any:
